After 10 years of careful planning, Tudor Place has developed a strategy to bring America’s story to life into its third century. The resulting Master Preservation Plan serves as a clear guide to Tudor Place’s future.

The Master Preservation Plan addresses the significant challenges we face as stewards of this National Historic landmark. Challenges include threats to the physical integrity of the historic house, 18,000+ piece Collection & Archive, and 5 ½ acre landscape.

The Third Century Capital Campaign was launched to achieve the goals of the Master Preservation Plan. Through this campaign and with the generous participation of donors, members, friends and visitors, we will raise the funds necessary to secure Tudor Place’s future.
Dower House Annex

Tudor Place offers a wide variety of educational opportunities for all ages.

Currently, many programs take place in car bays of the 1914 Garage, which lacks adequate temperature control and restroom facilities. Other programs take place in the 1867 Dower House Administration Building parlors and dining room, which have obstructed views and accommodate fewer than 40 people.

The Master Preservation Plan will adapt the 1867 Dower House Administration Building for programs, meeting rentals and the Landmark Lecture Series by adding an audience hall capable of seating 75 people comfortably with state-of-the-art audio-visual technology for presentations and participant interaction.
