Introduction

Dr. Armistead Peter Peter (1840-1902) was the son of Major George Peter (1779-1861) and his third wife Sarah Freeland Peter (1805-1846). He graduated from National Medical College in 1861. In 1867 he married his cousin, Martha Custis Kennon (1843-1886), the daughter of Britannia (Peter) Kennon (1815-1911). They had five children; their son, Armistead Peter, Jr. (1870-1950), became the third owner of Tudor Place. During their marriage the couple lived first at Tudor Place where the doctor maintained an office, and then at 3044 O Street N.W., in Georgetown, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Armistead Peter's papers include correspondence, subject files, legal documents, financial documents, scrapbook material, and printed material. Of interest are the correspondence files containing letters from his son Armistead Peter, Jr., and daughter-in-law Anna (Williams) Peter (1872-1961), as well as the material concerning the deaths of his brother Walter Gibson Peter (1842-1863) and cousin William Orton Williams (1839-1863).

These papers were a part of the estate Armistead Peter placed under the auspices of the Carostead Foundation, Incorporated, in 1966; the name of the foundation was changed to Tudor Place Foundation, Incorporated, in 1987. Use and rights of the paper are controlled by the Foundation. The collection was processed and the register prepared by James Kaser, a project archivist hired through a National Historical Records and Publications grant in 1992. This document was reformatted by Emily Rusch and revised by Tudor Place archivist Wendy Kail in 2020.

Biographical Sketch

Dr. Armistead Peter (1840-1902) was born in Montgomery County, Maryland, on February 23, 1840, the son of Major George Peter (1799-1861) and Major George Peter's third wife, Sarah (Freeland) Peter (1805-1846). His early education was obtained in school and under private tutors. After the death of his mother he lived in Georgetown, where he received guidance and encouragement for a medical career from Dr. Joshua Riley (1800-1875). He studied medicine at the National Medical College of Columbian University [George Washington University], Washington, D.C., graduating in February 1861. He settled in Georgetown and opened a general practice. He was a member of the American Medical Association, of the Medical Association of the District of Columbia, and vice-president of the alumni association of the National Medical College. He published articles in the American Journal of Medical Science. He was also a director of the Potomac Fire Insurance Company.

When the Civil War commenced he volunteered as a surgeon to the Confederacy, but was advised more doctors were not needed. Despite his family's southern leaning he offered his services to the Union Army; he served as Acting Assistant Surgeon of the United States Army in service at the Seminary Hospital of the District of Columbia as Ward Surgeon, and was placed in charge of the facility. He was ordered to open a hospital at Water's warehouse in Georgetown, but returned to the Seminary Hospital of his own accord. For several years he was a member of the Georgetown board of health, and was small-pox physician to the poor during 1866.

He married his cousin Martha Custis Kennon on April 23, 1867, and the couple resided at Tudor Place, where five children were born to them: Walter Gibson Peter (1868); Armistead Peter, Jr., (1870); Beverley Kennon Peter (1872); George Freeland Peter (1875); Agnes Norfleet Peter (1880). Their second son, Armistead Peter, Jr., would become the third owner of Tudor Place upon the death of his grandmother, Britannia (Peter) Kennon in 1911. Dr. Armistead Peter maintained an office in the East Wing of the house and saw his patients there. Eventually the couple built their own home in Georgetown on Congress Street between Stoddard and Road Streets [3044 O Street N.W., Georgetown, the corner of 31st and O Streets]; they also held property in Montgomery County, Maryland.

Dr. Peter died in 1902.
